Now that you have cleaned up the cover, you also need to check out the plugs inside the spa, which might be blocking the water or dirt and preventing it to drain out completely. For this, you need to make use of a shop vac, which will help you in getting rid of the dirty water before you refill your tub.

You could always take the help of your nearest local pool company usually for that matter. Then only tighten all the loose fittings. You also need to check on the pump and its filters and see that the air blower is connected to its pipe. Be sure that the drain valves are closed properly. You also need to see that there is proper flow of water to the system.

Now that you have fixed up the whole hot tub spa you need to fill it with water by removing the spa filters and fill it with water, in this way you not only fill the spa with water but also fill the pipes up too. Having filled the spa tub with water you need to sanitize the spa and this can be done depending upon the size by using chlorine, bromine or Baquaspa.
